Haven of Rest Cemetery is more than a graveyard. It is a perpetual care cemetery regulated by the Arkansas Cemetery Board. Haven of Rest Cemetery is also the largest burial ground for African Americans in Arkansas and is a repository of historical, cultural and genealogical information. To the historian, it holds precious records of times past. To the student of culture, it is tangible expressions of past beliefs, customs and values. To the genealogist, it offers important clues to family relationships. In 2008, a group of community people initiated a project to clean up Haven of Rest Cemetery. The belief was, we, the community, should support the preservation of this significant part of Arkansas history, particularly its African American history. This group was incorporated and is now Friends of Haven of Rest Cemetery, Incorporated (FHOR) and attorney B.J. McCoy was its first president. Friends of Haven of Rest completed and paid for the following: leveling, paving of the road

Haven of Rest Cemetery is an historic African American cemetery established in the early 1900s, located at 7102 West 12th near University Park Neighborhood in Little Rock, consisting of 17 acres and more than 12,000 inhabitants. Haven of Rest is the largest African American cemetery in the state of Arkansas. The grounds are delineated into 14 garden sections. Haven of Rest became the final resting place of prominent Arkansans such as Dr. Joseph A. Booker, first president of Arkansas Baptist College, a historical Black College founded in 1884; Scipio A. Jones, best known for successfully defending twelve men condemned to death after the Elaine Riots in 1919; Civil Rights Pioneer Daisy L. Bates, mentor to the Little Rock Nine; and many more thousands of less well known beloved citizens. Research efforts are ongoing to determine the precise age of Haven of Rest Cemetery. However, according to Barbara Clarke-Lawrence, author of Lay Down My Burdens; African American Cemetery Inscriptions, the earliest marker located at Haven of Rest bears a death date of March 16, 1903. The marker with the earliest birth year is 1841. Another early marker, located in Memory Lane, belongs to Lewis Moorman who was buried in 1905 according to Clarke-Lawrence. Haven of Rest Cemetery was accepted as a perpetual care cemetery by the Arkansas Cemetery Board in 1955. It is one of 98 perpetual care cemeteries in Arkansas under the jurisdiction of the Arkansas Cemetery Board.
